Concrete Theatre Celebrates Twenty Years

On Saturday, September 26, 2009 Concrete Theatre will kick off the season with a celebration of its 20-year history. Our birthday party will take place at Catalyst Theatre, 8529 Gateway Boulevard, starting at 7:30 p.m.

Local artists are donating their time to read scenes and sing songs from some of our most beloved shows. Julie Golosky, Jared Matsunaga-Turnbull and Garrett Spelliscy will join current artistic co-directors Caroline Howarth and Mieko Ouchi in the fun on stage along with other special surprise guests. Stage manager Ha Neul Kim will keep the show rolling. We'll also be sharing photos and stories of Concrete's growth from a project-based popular theatre collective into the professional Theatre for Young Audiences company it is today. Following the program, Chris Bullough brings his DJ expertise to the party to spin tunes for dancing during the reception.

We're old enough to offer a cash bar from 7 pm to midnight, and the students in the Commercial Cooking Program at Salisbury High are preparing some yummy treats.

Come celebrate with us, and help catapult us into the future!

Tickets are $10 and available in advance at TIX on the Square, or you can pay cash at the door.
